

The Right to Healthcare in African Countries: Nigeria in View-A Moral Appraisal

Peter F. Omonzejele

Department of Philosophy, University of Benin, Benin-City, Nigeria
E-mail: pomonzejele@yahoo.com

KEYWORDS African Traditional Values. Community. Corruption. Health Care. Justice. Poverty. Resources

ABSTRACT This article which is based on a true life occurrence in Nigeria was used to discuss the right to minimum healthcare in African countries. Individual and state responsibilities on how to actualize minimum healthcare in that part of the world were discussed. Ways of reducing poverty in African countries in order to achieve basic healthcare in African countries were also discussed in this article. One of such ways is for African leaders to treat the issue of access to basic healthcare in ways they would normally address security issues in that continent.