

Derailed Development: Review of Development and Rehabilitation Models for Tribal India

Shalina Mehta

KEYWORDS Development. Displacement. Rehabilitation. Tribal. Socio-Economic Planning.

ABSTRACT The indigenous populations of India, who have been original inhabitants of rich natural environments, have suffered cultural and economic deprivation in our quest for prosperity. Independent India faltered, while making planned interventions. Data recorded in this paper from the Tribal belts of Madhya Pradesh and Orissa compels us to review our development strategy. We have to compensate the native populations of these regions. The Adivasi's are now enlightened to demand their rights and injustices meted out to them in the name of development. This is an attempt to provide evidence in support of tribal demands for adequate compensation for their undesired and often unwarranted displacements.

Author's Address: Shalina Mehta, Professor, Department of Anthropology, Panjab University, Chandigarh 160 011, India, Email: shalinamehta@yahoo.co.uk.

©Kamla-Raj 2002
Anthropologist Special Issue No. 1: 213-226 (2002)

Anthropology: Trends and Applications
M.K. Bhasin and S.L. Malik, Guest Editors